The General Education committee will meet prior to the January 10th Steering committee meeting and will revise the Gordon Rule proposal with changes to the proposal's language for clarification purposes but no substantive changes.

Rick Yost suggested that rather than requiring two grades for the course professors could certify that the student met or did not meet the writing requirement.

The council discussed surveying professors who teach Gordon Rule courses to determine their thoughts on the proposal. Mark Rush stated that surveys conducted by the council should be neutral in order to obtain the most accurate results.

The council discussed the draft on the Conflict of Interest and Assignment of Course Materials statement and made revisions to the language in the document.

The council will continue their discussion of the draft at the January meeting.
